-- The TIP police developed a broad network of cooperation with international and regional organizations, such as the UN, INTERPOL, EUROPOL, SECI, IOM, and anti-trafficking police units of other countries.

-- The TIP police also had ongoing daily cooperation with prosecutors in the country and NGO's, in order to offer protection and safe repatriation to the victims.

-- In the past two years, the TIP police investigated 69 cases and dismantled 13 international organized criminal networks in cooperation with INTERPOL and EUROPOL.

-- During that same period, the TIP Police filed court papers against 287 persons in Greece and abroad, on the basis of which 192 Greeks and foreigners were arrested. Of the 192, 117 were charged for participation in a criminal organization; 52 were arrested in Greece, while warrants were issued for others not arrested. Of the 52 arrests in Greece, many are in pre-trial detention or have been released on probation until their case is heard by the courts. Most cases are pending. 4 have been tried on first degree charges, and sentences of 15-19 years were imposed at those trials.

-- Protection and aid was offered to 127 men, women, and children, many of whom were voluntarily repatriated. Of the 127, 41 were recognized as trafficking victims by the prosecutor and were hosted at NGO shelters.
